

Respite Care

For those being cared for in their own home, because of illness, disability or frailty, a break away from everyday routine can be as valuable to the carer as it is to the person being cared for. If you are confined to home, being given the opportunity to enjoy different surroundings can be immensely therapeutic. At the same time, it gives the carer a break and time to re-charge their batteries.

Mr F, a beneficiary of CABA, was diagnosed with Multiple Sclerosis at the age of 35. He is now confined to a wheelchair and relies on the help of a full-time carer. Mr F was delighted when the Association offered to pay for Respite care. His elderly parents live nearly 100 miles away and, sadly, do not get to see their son as often as they would like. Visiting Lucerne House, close to family and friends, gives Mr F the additional benefit of enjoying some quality time with loved ones, in lovely peaceful surroundings.
